

Acknowledgments

This Report is the product of a cooperative effort. The selection of themes, topics and authors was made by the WSSR Editorial Team under the guidance of the Editorial Board and with the support of scholars and advisers worldwide. The authors are essentially responsible for the quality of the content of the different chapters. The editorial team wrote the different chapter presentations, introductions, unsigned articles and boxes, executive summary and overall conclusions.

The team owes a special debt of gratitude to the members of the Editorial Board, to the Chairman of this Board who is also the President of ISSC, Gudmund Hernes, and to Heide Hackmann, ISSC Secretary-General, for their constant support and guidance.

The team drew inspiration from numerous presentations made at the ISSC World Social Science Forum, which was held in Bergen, Norway, in May 2009 and was co-organized by the ISSC and the university's Stein Rokkan Centre. A number of authors were chosen from among the contributors to the Bergen World Social Science Forum.

In addition to the editorial team, numerous people advised on themes and authors, and read papers. The team is particularly indebted to Rigas Arvanitis, Anita Craig and Olivier Nay for their important suggestions, insightful comments and constant support. The team is also grateful for useful ideas from Michel Carton, Christian Fleck, Yves Gingras, Johan Heilbron, Christine Inglis, Olivier Martin, Dominique Pestre, Esteban Radiszcz, Daniel Sabbagh, Asunción Valderrama, N. V. Varghese and Yves Winkin.

Bruno Auerbach, Grégoire Chamayou and Lucy Gathier participated in the very early stages of the preparation of the Report and we acknowledge their valuable contributions.

David E. Apter passed away on 4 May, before what was possibly his last piece of writing came out in the present Report. He was a scholar who truly transcended several social science disciplines. In addition to his article, he provided support and insightful comments throughout the preparation of the Report.

We are grateful to the UNESCO Institute for Statistics (UIS) – and its Director Hendrik van der Pol – for its valuable support in the preparation of the statistical annex on the number of social scientists in the world and their production, and for providing comments on the data. We particularly thank Albert Motivans and Yanhong Zhang for education statistics and Ernesto Fernandez Polcuch and Martin Schaaper for science statistics. Likewise we are grateful to Sir Roderick Floud and Balázs Kiss of the European Science Foundation for their useful comments and support in the preparation of this annex.

We also thank all those who contributed as reviewers of the various papers and of the full Report.

The Report benefited greatly from the editorial expertise of Martin Ince, as well as that of Ilse Evertse and Edouard Morena. The team is also grateful to Joe Gillett, Sarah Houdin-Dreyfuss and to the ISSC Secretariat for their assistance.