

Pattern of Human Concerns Data (PHCD, 1957-1963)

The entity that has organized the survey and is responsible for data collection - as well as key data on the entity's membership, governance arrangements, source of funding etc.

The Pattern of Human Concerns Data (PHCD) was organized by Hadley Cantril at Princeton University, Institute for International Social Research in collaboration with the Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR), University of Michigan.

A historical sketch of the initiation and origin of the survey

Internet links to the website of the responsible organization

There is no website for the PHCD, however ICPSR has a subsite for it.

The frequency or repetitions of the survey. Possible explanation of this.

The data was collected in the time period 1957-1963, depending on which country it was in. Two waves were conducted in India and Israel.

A description of the survey's content, i.e. both focused rotational and / or core modules of the survey

The topic of the survey was one's subjective rating and perceptions of the hopes and fears for one self and for one's nation. In addition the usual demographic/biographic information was collected.

An outline of the type of sample and the main data collection methods used

The target population was the population of the participating countries aged 15 and up. Sample sizes varied between 500 and 2,300. Samples were representative of the populations, except in India where females were underrepresented. To achieve the representativeness, some of the samples were heavily weighted.

Face-to-face interviews were employed.

An account of availability of the data to researchers, restrictions on access, etc.

ICPSR are hosting data from 10 of the 14 nations included in the original study: Data from Egypt, Japan, the Philippines, and Poland are not available.

Questionnaires, English version

The questionnaires are available in the Study Codebook.

The countries included in the different rounds

Brazil, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Egypt, India, Israel, Japan, Nigeria, Panama, the Philippines, Poland, the United States, West Germany, and Yugoslavia.

Cumulative file

Not relevant; this is a single study.

Publications based on data

There is no complete list. There is, however, a book based on this study written by the principal investigator: Cantril, Hadley (1965). The Pattern of Human Concerns. New Brunswick: Rutgers University Press.

At the bottom of the ICPSR's website for the PHCD, three more studies are listed under the heading "Related Publications".
